

BUILD THE GROWTH ENGINE.

Your assignment: take Vihara from a paid acquisition engine to a repeatable growth system.

At Vihara, we're building a simpler way to buy and sell real estate. We move fast, test ideas, measure what happens, and double down on what works.

This assignment gives you a real problem, real context, and room to think like an owner.

Don't give us a marketing textbook. Show us what you'd actually do.

WHY	WHAT	HOW
Meta alone won't scale Vihara's growth.	An audit, one campaign, a testing plan, and a 30 day roadmap.	Show your first 30 days as Marketing Manager, in one submission.

THE CHALLENGE

You join Vihara as Marketing Manager tomorrow.

Meta Ads are currently our primary acquisition channel. We want to improve performance, build stronger creative systems, develop Google and other channels, and create a more repeatable demand generation engine.

Your job: show us what you'd do in your first 30 days. Focus on execution, not theory.

PART 1

Audit

If you inherited Vihara's marketing tomorrow, what would you look at first?

Build a practical audit across: Meta Ads, Google Ads, landing pages, conversion tracking, creative, audience and segmentation, retargeting, funnel, social and content, and reporting.

For each area, answer:

- What would you check?
- What would you look for?
- What would you change if you found a problem?

Don't write generic marketing principles. Show us how you'd actually investigate the account.

PART 2Build a Campaign

Choose one Vihara property or campaign and build a complete paid acquisition campaign, end to end: audience, angle, offer, creative, copy, landing page, conversion, retargeting.

Include:

- Campaign objective
- Audience
- Campaign structure
- 2 to 3 creative concepts
- Primary text
- Headlines
- CTA
- Landing page messaging
- Retargeting strategy
- Conversion event

You should be able to hand this directly to a designer or media buyer and have them start execution.

PART 3Creative Testing

Build a simple creative testing plan. Show:

- What you'd test
- Why you'd test it
- How many variations
- What metric determines success
- When you'd kill, iterate, or scale a creative

Include at least 3 different marketing angles, for example: problem based, opportunity based, product or value based.

Show us you understand creative as a growth lever, not simply as design.

Creative diversification by buyer type

Vihara sells to very different buyers, and they don't all think about us the same way. Segments include: flippers and uppers, first time investors, serial investors, buy and hold investors, institutional buyers, developers and construction, and first time or repeat home owners.

For at least 3 of these segments, research and map:

- ICP, who exactly this buyer is
- Awareness stage, unaware, problem aware, solution aware, product aware, or most aware
- Pain, the specific problem this buyer feels today
- Angle, the message that would actually move them
- Creative, the format and approach you'd use to reach them

Tell us what Vihara should actually do differently for each segment, not just that they're different.

PART 430 Day Execution Plan

Create a week by week plan for your first 30 days.

Week 1 What would you audit, fix, and understand?

Week 2 What would you launch?

Week 3 What would you test and optimize?

Week 4 What would you scale, stop, or rebuild?

Keep this highly practical. Every task should answer: what are you doing, why are you doing it, and what outcome are you expecting.

PART 5Growth Beyond Meta

Meta is currently our primary growth engine. Tell us which 2 additional growth opportunities you'd test and why.

Potential areas: Google Search, Performance Max, YouTube, LinkedIn, organic social, SEO, email, partnerships, realtor and investor programs, outbound, content, community, or other ideas.

Don't build a huge channel strategy. Pick two. Tell us what you'd actually launch.

PART 6Measurement

Here's what actually happened last month.

Vihara ran Meta campaigns for the Turlock property auction. They generated 340 leads at a $38 CPL, right in line with historical performance. But only 22 of those leads completed bidder registration, down from a typical 60, and just 4 went on to place a bid. CPL barely moved. Nothing on the ads dashboard looks broken.

Walk us through how you'd diagnose this:

- What would you look at first, and why?
- What's your working hypothesis?
- What would you test or check to confirm it?
- What would you put in place so this shows up earlier next time?

Then define the KPIs you'd track across the full funnel: acquisition, conversion, qualified lead, registered bidder, revenue.

We want to see how you use data to make decisions, not just which metrics you can name.

PART 7One Big Idea

Now forget the existing playbook. Give us one growth idea for Vihara that you'd personally be excited to test. It can be unconventional.

Explain:

- The idea
- Why it could work
- How you'd execute it
- What you'd measure

This is your chance to show us how you think.

WHAT WE'RE LOOKING FORExecution over theory

We're not looking for the longest submission. We're looking for: execution over theory, specificity over generic advice, prioritization over doing everything, testing over assumptions, data over opinions, ownership over waiting for instructions.

A strong candidate can take an idea from insight, to hypothesis, to campaign, to creative, to launch, to measurement, to iteration.

SUBMISSIONWhat to send us

Keep it concise. Recommended format: 8 to 12 slides.

Alongside the deck, record a short walkthrough (5 to 8 minutes, Loom or similar) talking through your thinking: what you prioritized, why, and how you'd actually execute it. The deck shows the output. The walkthrough is how we judge the thinking behind it.

Use whatever tools you'd normally use to do your best work: AI tools, design tools, research, spreadsheets, ad libraries, analytics frameworks, or anything else you'd realistically use on the job. We care about the quality of your thinking and execution, not the software you use.

SHOW US HOW YOU THINK

There's no single correct answer. We want to see how you approach an unfamiliar problem, what you prioritize, what you'd test, and how you turn ideas into execution.

If you were already the Marketing Manager at Vihara, what would you do? That's the assignment.
